Lake Norman Realty's Greer Stamey Brings Third "Realtor of the Year" Award from Lincoln County Board of Realtors

Lake Norman Realty marks its 34th year of excellence serving the Lake Norman community as a one-stop shop for real estate transactions. Greer Stamey, Lake Norman Realty Broker, continued this reputation of excellence by winning, "Realtor of the Year" from the Lincoln County Board of Realtors. Greer has been serving the Lincoln County real estate community for 35 years and is a recognizable community leader.

In 1977, local hometown REALTORS founded the National Association member board to serve the public with a strict code of ethics and oath to help protect buyer's and seller's rights and make a quick, smooth real estate transaction. The Lincoln County Board of Realtors currently has one-hundred and thirty professional REALTOR® and Affiliate members. Greer Stamey, was the first woman president of the Lincoln County Board of Realtors in 1983 and has come full-circle with the honor of being the winner of this title.

A native of Lincoln County, Greer specializes in Denver, Lincolnton, Lincoln county, and the surrounding areas. She bases her success on the satisfaction of each client. Greer's attention to detail provides her clients with the assurance of a complete, professional approach. She believes that a commitment to communication is key to bringing the highest quality of service when buying or selling a home. Hard work, accessibility, and a "can do" attitude are what have made Greer a leader in her field.

Now Lake Norman Realty is home to three winners of this prestigious award including: Kay Davis, Broker-in-Charge of Lake Norman Realty's Denver Office, and Shantae Brown, Broker-in-Charge of Lake Norman Realty's Mooresville Office.
